Republic of Liberia

Know Your Senators

Senate Directory

Message from the Senate

The Liberian Senate is pleased to present to the people of Liberia this Directory of the Senate. The purpose of this Directory is to facilitate a stronger relationship between senators and their constituents by providing contact details for each legislator as well as information about which committees we belong to and what counties we represent. Additionally, a document of this nature will provide other stake holders such as: legislative staff, civil society organization, international partners, schools, colleges and universities with accurate contact information for the senators.

The Directory of the Senate provides a photograph of each member of the Senate and information about members' contact numbers, political affiliations, constituency, occupation, legislative committees' membership and office location. Contact information for the main Senate administrative staff can also be found below, and we encourage citizens to engage these staff, as we seek to make Liberia's Senate even more accountable and accessible to constituents.

How to Contact Liberian Senators

You can contact your senators by writing a letter, calling, or visiting his/her offices. All questions and comments regarding public policy issues, legislation or issues of concern to you and your community should be directed to the senators from your constituency through his or her chief-of-staff.

It is the Senate's hope that this directory will be used wisely for the purpose of building a stronger relationship between legislators and citizens.

The Senate would like to express thanks and appreciation to the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs (NDI) and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) for their assistance to the Joint Legislative Modernization Committee in the development and publication of this Directory.

Sincerely,

Senator Cletus S. Wotorson
President Pro-Tempore

Introduction: Overview of the Legislature

The legislature, executive and judiciary are three separate yet equal branches of government, each with specific constitutional functions, duties and responsibilities. This arrangement provides for a system of checks and balances of power among the branches.

Legislative institutions are complex and multifaceted organizations. These institutions are considered the principal forum for debate on public policy issues and a place for compromise and consensus building. Moreover, legislatures reflect a broad spectrum of the country's political opinions. They are central to democratic government, as long as they remain visible, accessible and accountable to the citizenry.

Liberia's legislature, like other legislatures around the world, strives to fulfill the following three functions: representation of Liberia's citizenry, lawmaking and oversight over the executive branch of government. These functions are facilitated by effective self-management and an infrastructure that meets the needs of the legislature.

The Liberian Legislature consists of two separate houses: the Senate and the House of Representatives, both of which must pass all legislation before it can be sent to the president to sign into law. Currently, there are 30 members in the Senate and 64 in the House of Representatives. They assemble in regular sessions beginning on the second working Monday in January. By enactment, the Legislature usually goes on an annual "agriculture break" by the month of August of every year.

According to the Constitution of Liberia, the Senate is composed of 30 senators elected by the registered voters in each of the 15 counties. In the 52nd legislature, senators of the first category are those who received the highest number of votes cast and serve terms of nine years, while senators of the second category are those who receive the second highest number of votes and serve terms of six years. The vice president of the Republic is the president of the Senate and presides over its deliberations without the right to vote, except in the case of a tie vote. In the absence of the president of the Senate, the president pro-tempore will preside. The president pro-tempore is elected from among the 30 Senators once every six years.

The Constitution of Liberia in Article 34 provides the Legislature with the power to:

- Create new counties and other political sub-divisions, and to readjust existing county boundaries;
- Provide for the security of the Republic;
- Provide for the common defense; declare war and authorize the executive to conclude peace; and raise, support, and regulate the Armed Forces of the Republic;
- Levy taxes, duties, imposts, excise and other revenues, and to borrow money, issue currency, mint coins and make appropriations for the fiscal governance of the Republic;
- Constitute courts inferior to the Supreme Court, including circuit courts, claims courts and other courts with such prescribed jurisdictional powers as may be deemed necessary for the proper administration of justice throughout the Republic;
- Approve treaties, conventions and such other international agreements negotiated or signed on behalf of the Republic;
- Regulate trade and commerce between Liberia and other nations;
- Establish laws for citizenship, naturalization and residence;
- Enact the electoral laws;
- Establish various categories of criminal offenses and provide for the punishment thereof;
- Enact laws providing pension scheme for various categories of government officials and employees in accordance with age and tenure of service; and
- Make other laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers and all other powers vested by the Constitution in the Government of the Republic, or in any department or office thereof.
